

AS HISTORY

The Crisis of Communism: the USSR and the Soviet Empire, 1953–2000
Component 2T Crisis in the Soviet Union, 1953–2000

Tuesday 22 May 2018 Afternoon Time allowed: 1 hour 30 minutes

Materials

For this paper you must have:

- an AQA 16-page answer book.

Instructions

- Use black ink or black ball-point pen.
- Write the information required on the front of your answer book. The Paper Reference is 7041/2T.
- Answer two questions.
In Section A answer Question 01.
In Section B answer either Question 02 or Question 03.

Information

- The marks for questions are shown in brackets.
- The maximum mark for this paper is 50.
- You will be marked on your ability to:
 - use good English
 - organise information clearly
 - use specialist vocabulary where appropriate.

Advice

- You are advised to spend about:
 - 50 minutes on Section A
 - 40 minutes on Section B.

Section AAnswer Question 01.

Source A

From an article in 'The Harvard Crimson', the daily student newspaper of Harvard University, USA, by an American student, February 1988.

Gorbachev has announced that the Soviet Union will withdraw from Afghanistan. The Soviet leader has also said that the Kremlin does not want a say in who governs Afghanistan after the departure of its estimated 115,000 troops, who have been battling Afghan guerrillas for more than eight years. The intervention has been a major irritant in US-Soviet relations. It is the clearest indication yet that Gorbachev is moving rapidly to remove his country from the conflict that he has termed a "bleeding wound". At the White House, a spokesman said that Gorbachev's statement "sounds like a positive step and we hope it is".

5

Source B

From 'Perestroika' by Mikhail Gorbachev, published in 1988. This summarised speeches given by Gorbachev, 1985–87.

On the whole, we have long lived in peace. But the current international situation can't be described as satisfactory. The nuclear arms race goes on. Regional conflicts are raging. The war danger grows. To make international relations more humane is the only way out – and that is a difficult thing to do. It is essential to rise above ideological differences. A new model of political thinking is necessary; one that proceeds from the idea that civilisation must survive. If we reach an understanding on the criteria of such new thinking, we shall arrive at valid decisions for global issues. If political leaders realise that point and implement it practically, it will be a major victory for reason.

5

0 1

With reference to these sources and your understanding of the historical context, which of these two sources is more valuable in explaining the ending of the Cold War?

[25 marks]

Section B

Answer either Question 02 or Question 03.

Either

0 2 'Khrushchev was successful in his policy of peaceful co-existence with the West.'

Explain why you agree or disagree with this view.

[25 marks]

or

0 3 'The 10th Five Year Plan of 1976–81 failed to improve living standards in the USSR.'

Explain why you agree or disagree with this view.

[25 marks]

END OF QUESTIONS

There are no questions printed on this page

Copyright information

For confidentiality purposes, from the November 2015 examination series, acknowledgements of third party copyright material will be published in a separate booklet rather than including them on the examination paper or support materials. This booklet is published after each examination series and is available for free download from www.aqa.org.uk after the live examination series.

Permission to reproduce all copyright material has been applied for. In some cases, efforts to contact copyright-holders may have been unsuccessful and AQA will be happy to rectify any omissions of acknowledgements. If you have any queries please contact the Copyright Team, AQA, Stag Hill House, Guildford, GU2 7XJ.

Copyright © 2018 AQA and its licensors. All rights reserved.

