The rise of the discount food retailers

For many years four companies have dominated food retailing sales in the UK: Asda, Morrisons, Sainsbury's and Tesco. However, these 'big four' retailers have faced growing competition from discount retailers such as Aldi and Lidl.

Daihatsu

Daihatsu is a Japanese manufacturer of small cars. Its customers are now able to customise their vehicles with car panels that they design for themselves online. Until recently customising cars was expensive because it required skilled craftsmen to produce individual parts.

With 3-D printing, panels can be produced quickly and cheaply. Customers ordering a Daihatsu car from their local dealership can design their own panels for the sides of the car to create exactly the look that they want. Offering more customisation is one way that car manufacturers are trying to gain a competitive advantage in a fiercely competitive environment.

Cars are a high value item for consumers and are usually bought on credit; the finance to buy the car is often provided by the manufacturer. In 2016 over 74 million cars were sold worldwide. This represents a global capacity utilisation in the car industry of only 78%. Some commentators predict global capacity utilisation in the industry will fall in the next few years and that many car manufacturers will respond to this situation by price cutting.

0 2 . 1

Explain how mass customisation benefits the shareholders of car manufacturers.

Kento Cola

Carbonated soft drinks (CSDs), such as cola, are non-alcoholic, fizzy beverages containing flavourings, sweeteners and other ingredients. CSDs have been criticised by some commentators for contributing to an obesity crisis. The World Health Organisation is encouraging more governments to place a tax on CSDs.

Kento Cola is a drinks manufacturer based in the UK. It is presently reviewing its portfolio within Europe, which traditionally has been its biggest market. Recently the company has also been investing more money into markets outside of Europe. For example, it is set to invest £2.4 billion in Africa by 2020. Last month Kento announced a planned merger with one of South Africa's largest bottled water and still drinks producers.

Whilst other economies are in decline or experiencing slow growth, Africa is continuing to achieve high growth rates. Consumer spending, already rising, is expected to boom between now and 2024 reaching £1.7 trillion per year in 2030. However, trying to grow in any international market brings its challenges and the many countries within Africa differ significantly – for example, socially, politically, culturally and economically as well as in terms of their competitive environment.

The rating is an index number out of 100.

The area of the circle represents the product's revenue.

Figure 9: A comparison of Africa and Europe in 2016

	Africa	Europe
Population	1 218 million	738 million
Annual population growth	2.53%	0.06%
% population that is urban	40%	74%
Average age	19.5 years old	41.9 years old
Average annual income per person	£1 400	£29 200

Question 3 continues on the next page

0 3 . 1

A manager from the UK is moving to South Africa to lead a team of local staff. Explain how the difference in Hofstede’s cultural dimension of ‘Power Distance’ shown in Figure 7 might affect her management style.
