The following answers should score full marks, but please remember that different answers for (b) and (c) could score equally highly.

Read the information in the accompanying Resource Booklet and answer all questions.

1 Study Sources 1 and 2.

(a) Identify the area with the highest percentage of workers in vulnerable employment, from Source 1.

South-east Asia

[1]

(b) Identify two benefits of good working conditions, from Source 2.

protection from dangers at work

improve social relations

(c) Which benefit of good working conditions do you think is the most important? Explain why.

Protection from dangers at work seem the most important because the consequences of a workplace accident could be death or lifelong disability to the worker, and huge compensation claims and loss of reputation for the company. These consequences are more severe than the unhappiness caused by e.g. poor social relations or self-esteem, even though they are also important.
