Part 3: Translation

Translate the following passage into Urdu.

It has happened to all of us. You're walking down the street and the sound of an incoming text message becomes too hard to resist. As you start to reply you walk straight into a passer-by doing exactly the same thing.

If you watch YouTube videos of careless people colliding with lamp posts and dustbins, it is very funny. However the consequences won't always make you laugh.

According to a professor of medicine in London, if you walk into a lamp post it can cause you a lot of damage. You can expect injuries to your face such as a broken nose, but if you fall over, then you're much more likely to suffer hand injuries and broken wrists.

But the big danger comes if you are hit by a car. It is reported that 59% of deaths or injuries are caused by people not looking where they are going. The professor suggests that people should look at their phones only when it is safe to do so.
