This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

This image shows a full page of a worksheet designed for handwriting practice. It consists of approximately 20 horizontal rows. Each row is defined by two parallel dashed lines, creating a series of uniform gaps for writing. The lines are evenly spaced across the entire page, providing a guide for letter height and placement. There is no text or other markings on the page.

Part 3: Translation

Translate the following passage into Urdu (20 marks).

Nowadays, most of us spend all our time checking our mobile phone screens. It is almost as if we are afraid that if we put them down for just one moment we will miss some vital text or email. Someone said it was like a toddler holding his mother's hand for security and comfort!

The reality is that we can't usually ignore messages, no matter who they are from. They sit there safely in the memory of our phones, unless we do something stupid like dropping them in water or pressing the wrong button. The messages will stay in there forever until we have time to look at them and answer them.

According to medical research the constant looking at our phones every other minute can have negative effects on our health. We get increasingly anxious when we do not get quick responses to our messages because we expect everything in our lives to happen immediately.

It is essential that people, whether young or old, relax and put their phones to one side from time to time. To achieve this, we have to allocate a certain time each day to enjoy with our family and friends face to face to get into a good routine.
