Camping weekend at Three Trees Campsite
by Gosia Nowak

We set off early, reaching Three Trees after lunch so we could put up our tent before it got dark. There was room close to the river, but spaces between the trees looked better, and quieter than near the entrance.

At dinner, we burned the burgers! Luckily, the camp shop sold sausages. They had sandwiches, but we wanted something hot.

In the morning, we went to the beach and hired a boat. We went fishing, but only Mum caught anything! Then, we watched people playing volleyball.

The next day, we went to the mountains on the train to watch a cycle race – the roads were closed for vehicles. Afterwards, we saw mountain goats in a forest, and I took photos of a castle nearby.

On the journey home, I realised my glasses weren't in my coat pocket. I phoned the campsite, and they were there, so we had to go back!

Hi Grandma,

Sorry it's taken me ages to write – I've had so much work to do. I want to tell you all about the school talent show – it's a real shame you were on holiday and missed it!

We used the town theatre for the show, and we all met in the school hall at 6.15 before walking there together. It's not far, so we didn't need a coach. We were there in time for 7.00, when everything began.

As well as our parents, Year 8 students were invited. The performers were all from Year 9, and we all looked good in our special costumes, instead of school uniform!

Rather than the piano, I played my violin. I love both, but I'm also in a school singing group, and we had decided to sing a song! Each student was only allowed to perform twice. Before I went on, I felt really nervous about being on stage. Once I got out there, though, I was more excited than anything else! Everything went well, and the audience sometimes sang along with us. We really didn't expect that! Then at the end, of course, everyone clapped very loudly!

There were prizes, including pens and posters. I didn't get either of those, but the book I did receive was great. Then it was time to go home. We went to a café first and my mum said I could have whatever I liked. It was a perfect end to the evening!

- 5 Read the information about five people (a–e) and the eight advertisements for photography courses (1–8).

For each person (a–e), write the correct number (1–8) on the line.

Photography Courses

Habiba is interested in technology and wants to learn about the latest cameras. She'd like to join a course which meets weekly and visit some exhibitions with the group.

Paolo wants to know more about using IT to improve his pictures and learn from a professional photographer. He also wants to know how to take better pictures of animals.

Izabella hopes to take pictures of the clothes her dad designs and get ideas for making presents using photos. She wants a course for people who already have photography experience.

Diego needs to do a beginners' course and get tips about photographing people. He wants to borrow a traditional camera to see if he likes using it.

Christi would like to take pictures of scenery with the group. She'd like to find out about the history of photography and to show her pictures in an exhibition.

.....

- Image Workshop

1 Come along on Friday mornings to get ideas for turning photos into creative gifts and learn to take better pictures of everything from fashion to landscapes! The course is for people with some photography skills, rather than beginners.
- All About Photos

2 As well as learning how photography has changed over time and trying some old cameras, we'll go outside to practise taking photos of beautiful countryside and creatures. And every few weeks we display your photos for people to admire!
- Pictures Made Easy

3 Whether you're starting out or you're experienced, you'll learn lots here. We visit the historic city centre to photograph people and places, and everyone uploads their best pictures to the group's website – a great way to get feedback.
- Photography For All

4 Come along every Saturday to this friendly group. We'll learn skills used by experts in the business and get the chance to find out about the most up-to-date equipment. Plus we'll go to local photography shows together – great fun!
- Photographers' Club

5 Learn from the best. Ben, your tutor, took pictures for a safari book: hear his experience of photographing lions! Don't worry, you'll be taking pictures of something safer: our focus is the environment, so expect trips to the coast.
- Get Creative!

6 Everyone loves taking pictures! For advice about taking better ones of family and friends, join our group – previous experience unnecessary. Want to take pictures with something other than a phone? We have cameras you can take away to try!
- PhotoWorld

7 Designed for people wanting an introduction to photography, find your style by exploring the techniques of photographers from times past. You'll see how to take pictures to make into a book – perfect for birthdays or celebrating a friendship!
- Picture It!

8 We're lucky to have a tutor who works for fashion magazines. He's also experienced in wildlife photography, so you'll benefit from his wide knowledge, which includes using the latest software to edit pictures to make them stand out!

Writing blog
By Siti Tan

I've always loved writing. I write a lot now – mostly short stories – and I also keep a diary. The little poems I used to create weren't great, but they were the start of my interest in writing.

I first realised I might be quite good when my teacher read out one of my stories to the class. I was so embarrassed when she began, but then I was really proud when everyone congratulated me at the end.

Every writer has a favourite place to write. For some, it's a noisy café; for others, a quiet park. I'm in the first group – there's something about it that makes me feel creative!

I'm writing a new story at the moment. It's different from my last one about a young horse rider. That was fun to write, but this one, about the environment, is more serious. When I've finished, I'll enter it into a competition for young writers. Not for the cash prize, but because I want to know what people think about it. Plus, the winner gets to have their story printed online, which I'd love!

I'm always looking for ways to become a better writer. There's a website for young writers which I often visit – it's free, unlike the writing courses you see advertised.

My parents are never too busy to read what I've written. That's lovely, but because they're my parents, they think everything I write is fantastic.

I know that I spend too much time writing, and my friends have complained about that in the past. But I don't think they understand how much it means to me.

My grandmother loves writing too. She writes something every day and recommends I do the same. She says writers often keep trying to find a great new idea. She thinks if you tell a story about something you've experienced, however, you'll end up with something much better.
