Adapted from Census of India 2011

- (a) From the evidence in Source A, identify the gender with the lowest literacy rate and the gender with the highest percentage population growth. [2]
- (b) Identify two methods that could be used to collect quantitative data. [2]
- (c) Using information from Source A, describe two reasons why quantitative data may not be valid. [4]
- (d) Describe two strengths of using a pilot study in sociological research. [4]
- (e) Describe two strengths and two limitations of using quantitative data in sociological research. [8]
- (f) Explain why interpretivists prefer to use qualitative data. [10]
- (g) To what extent do official statistics fail to accurately measure what they set out to measure? [15]

Section B: Culture, identity and socialisation

- 2 The world has many diverse cultures but within a culture there may be sub-cultures. The cultures often have hidden rules which are not apparent to the outsider. Members of the culture must conform to the group's rules, norms and values or they may face coercion.
- (a) What is meant by the term 'coercion'? [2]
- (b) Describe two ways in which culture can be transmitted from one generation to another. [4]
- (c) Explain how coercion can be used to ensure social conformity. [6]
- (d) Explain why sub-cultures are formed. [8]
- (e) To what extent is the existence of sub-cultures evidence of non-conformity in society? [15]

Section C: Social inequality

- 3 Feminist sociologists maintain that despite equal opportunity laws women still face discrimination in society. There are too few women in top jobs because there is a glass ceiling which they are unable to break through. Some have suggested that women form a reserve army of labour.
- (a) What is meant by the term 'glass ceiling'? [2]
- (b) Describe two ways women may face discrimination in employment. [4]
- (c) Explain how the reserve army of labour may benefit modern industrial society. [6]
- (d) Explain why equal opportunity laws may not achieve equality in society. [8]
- (e) To what extent is there a lack of opportunity for women in modern industrial society? [15]
