

A Level Drama and Theatre

H459/41 Deconstructing Texts for Performance Antigone

Friday 15 June 2018 – Afternoon

Time allowed: 1 hour 45 minutes

No additional material is required for this question paper.

First name
Last name
Centre number	Candidate number

INSTRUCTIONS

- Use black ink. You may use an HB pencil for annotation lines.
- Complete the boxes above with your name, centre number and candidate number.
- · Answer all the questions.
- Write your answer to each question in the space provided. If additional space is required, use the lined page(s) at the end of this booklet. The question number(s) must be clearly shown.
- Do not write in the barcodes.

INFORMATION

- The total mark for this paper is 60.
- The marks for each question are shown in brackets [].
- This document consists of 16 pages.

2

Answer all the questions.

Explain how you extract to suppor	t your answer.			[3
		 	 •••••

Creon:	Did you tell anyone what you were going to do?
Antigone:	No.
Creon:	Did you meet anyone on the way?	5
Antigone:	No.
Creon:	Are you sure?
Antigone:	Yes.
Creon:	Listen, then. Go back to your room, go to bed, and say you're ill and haven't been out since yesterday. Get your nurse to say the same. I'll get rid of those three men.	10
Antigone:	What's the point? They know I'll do it again.	15
	(Silence. They look at each other.)
Creon:	Why did you try to bury your brother?	20
Antigone:	I had to.
Creon:	I'd forbidden it.
Antigone	(quietly): I had to just the same. People who aren't buried wander for ever in search of rest. If my brother had come home tired after a day's hunting I'd have	25
	taken off his boots, given him something to eat and got his bed ready. Polynices has done with hunting now. He's going home, to where Mother and Father, and Eteocles too, are waiting for him. He's entitled to some rest.	30 35
Creon:	He was a rebel and a traitor and you know it.
Antigone:	He was my brother.
Creon:	You heard my edict proclaimed at every crossroads? You saw the posters on every wall?	40
Antigone:	Yes.
Creon:	So you knew what was to become of anyone who dared give him burial?	45
Antigone:	Yes.

Turn over

Creon:	Maybe you thought that as the daughter of Oedipus, of Oedipus's pride, you were above the law?	50
Antigone:	No. I didn't think that.
Creon:	The law is meant especially for you, Antigone – it's meant especially for the daughters of kings!	55
Antigone:	If I'd been a servant girl up to the elbows in dishwater when I heard the edict, I'd have dried my hands and gone out in my apron to bury my brother.	60
Creon:	No, you wouldn't. If you'd been a servant girl you'd have known you'd die for it – so you'd have stayed at home and mourned your brother	65
	there. But you thought that because you belonged to the royal family – because you were my niece and my son's fiancé – I wouldn't dare have you put to death whatever you did.	70 75
Antigone:	You're wrong. I was sure you would have put me to death. (CREON looks at her, then bursts out suddenly, as if to Creon:	himself.) The pride of Oedipus. You're its living image. And now I see it again in your eyes, I believe you. You thought I	80 would have you put to death, and that struck you, in your vanity, as a very suitable end for you. For your father, too, ordinary human misery	85
	 there was no question of happiness! – wasn't enough. In your family, what's human only cramps your style – 	90
	you have to have a private confrontation with destiny and death. You have to kill your father and sleep with your mother, and then find out about it later on and	95
© OCR 2018	out about it later on, and drink it all in word by word. Some drink, eh, the words	100

of doom? And how greedily you swig them down if your name's Oedipus – or	105
Antigone. The next thing	105 to do, of course, is to put your own eyes out and trail around with your children,
begging. Well, all that's over	440
and done with – times have	110 changed in Thebes. What Thebes needs now is an ordinary king with no fuss.
My name's only Creon, thank	445
God. I've got both feet on the	115 ground and both hands in my pockets. I'm not so ambitious as your father was, and all I aim at now I'm king is to try to see the world's a bit	120 more sensibly run. There's nothing very heroic about it – just an everyday job, and, like the rest of them, not always very amusing. But	125
since that's what I'm here for, that's what I'm going to do. And if some scruffy messenger comes down from the mountains tomorrow and	130
tells me he's none too sure about my parentage, I'll just send him packing. I shan't go comparing dates and
looking askance at my aunt.	135
Kings have other things to do besides souping up their own woes. (Goes over and takes her by the arm.) Now listen carefully. You may be	140
Antigone, Oedipus's daughter
- but you're only twenty. It isn't long since all this would have been sorted out with bread and water and a box	145
on the ears. (Smiling .) Have	7 70 you put to death! You can't have looked at yourself in the glass, you little sparrow!
You're too thin. You want to	150
fatten yourself up a bit and	100
give Haemon a nice sturdy son! You'd do Thebes more good that way than by dying,	155
believe me. Now you go	100 straight back to your room, do

Turn over

	as I told you and say nothing. I'll see everyone else keeps quiet. Go along. And don't glare like that. You think I'm a brute, of course, and horribly unpoetic. But, handful that you are, I'm fond of you. Don't forget it was I gave you your first doll, and not very long ago either!	160 165
	(ANTIGONE doesn't answer. She makes as if to leave. CREON stops her.)
	Antigone! That's not the way to your room. Where are you going?	170
Antigone	(stopping, and answering him quietly, without bravado): You know very well.	175
	(Silence. Again they stand looking at each other.)
Creon	(low, as if to himself): What are you playing at?
Antigone:	I'm not playing.	180
Creon:	Don't you realise that if anyone other than those three louts gets to know what you've tried to do, I shall have to have you killed? If you'll only keep quiet now and give up this foolishness there's a chance I may be able to save you. But in five minutes' time it will be too late. Do you understand?	185 190
Antigone:	They have uncovered my brother's body. I must go and bury him.
Creon:	You really would make that senseless gesture a third time? There's another set of guards watching over Polynices' body now, and	195
	you know very well that even if you did manage to cover it up they'd only uncover it again. What else can you do but scrape more skin off	200
	your fingers and get yourself caught again?	205

7

Antigone: Nothing else. But at least I can do that. And one must do what one can.

© OCR 2018 Turn over

As a direct integrating	the differen	nt scene	change	s in the	play.	•	·	, ,		[30

13 ADDITIONAL ANSWER SPACE

If additiona must be cle	I space is required, you should use the following lined page(s). The question number(searly shown in the margin(s).
	1

OCR Oxford Cambridge and RSA

Copyright Information

OCR is committed to seeking permission to reproduce all third-party content that it uses in its assessment materials. OCR has attempted to identify and contact all copyright holders whose work is used in this paper. To avoid the issue of disclosure of answer-related information to candidates, all copyright acknowledgements are reproduced in the OCR Copyright Acknowledgements Booklet. This is produced for each series of examinations and is freely available to download from our public website (www.ocr.org.uk) after the live examination series.

If OCR has unwittingly failed to correctly acknowledge or clear any third-party content in this assessment material, OCR will be happy to correct its mistake at the earliest possible opportunity.

 $For queries \ or \ further \ information \ please \ contact \ the \ Copyright \ Team, \ First \ Floor, 9 \ Hills \ Road, \ Cambridge \ CB2 \ 1GE.$

OCR is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group; Cambridge Assessment is the brand name of University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES), which is itself a department of the University of Cambridge.