Tired by the long journey, when Alexander saw a river he immediately threw himself into the cold water. Then suddenly such stiffness seized his body that he could hardly move and was pulled out with great difficulty by his companions. None of the doctors could suggest a cure, except one, but Alexander had been warned in a letter to beware of this man, because he had been bribed by the enemy. Thinking, however, that it would be better to accept his help rather than to meet certain death, he began to drink the medicine which the doctor offered him in a cup. At the same time he handed the doctor the letter and watched his face as he read it. Since he showed no sign of fear, Alexander was sure that he could trust him.
