International COMMUNICATION Project

Communication as a human right is embedded in ARTICLE 19 of the Declaration of Human Rights. It specifies that ‘EVERYONE HAS THE RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF OPINION AND EXPRESSION.’

7099 languages are spoken throughout the world.

466 million people suffer from disabling hearing loss, 34 million are children.

50-70% of children living in impoverished communities in developed economies have communication disabilities.

15% of the world's population has a disability.

The Declaration has been translated into 500 different languages.

There is 1 speech therapist for every 2 to 4 million people across Africa and 1 for every 800 000 people in India. In the USA, United Kingdom (UK), Australia and Canada there is 1 speech therapist between 2500 and 4700 people.

The Declaration was proclaimed in Paris on 10 December 1948.

758 million adults lack basic reading and writing skills.

The Declaration has a total of 30 Articles.

ARTICLE 21 of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities acknowledges the importance of people with disabilities being able to exercise their right to freedom of expression and opinion.

FIG. 1.2

UNIVERSAL DECLARATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS: ARTICLE 19

Article 19 states: Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression.

No one should be afraid to express who they are. That includes lesbian, gay, bisexual and trans (LGBT+) people being open about their sexual orientation without fear of discrimination.

The USA's first 'Coming Out' day was in 1988. LGBT+ people used the day as an opportunity to express their sexuality.

Under Article 19, Coming Out should be safe. But in some United Nations (UN) states, LGBT+ people are actively discriminated against and have little or no government protection.

But governments in countries such as Germany, the UK and South Africa have passed laws to promote the rights of LGBT+ people.

(b) Article 19 of the UDHR states that ‘Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression’.

Use the information from FIG. 1.1 and FIG. 1.2 to explain why the right to freedom of opinion and expression might not be available to everyone. Your explanation should include FOUR clear points. [4]

(c) APART FROM ARTICLE 19, think about all the human rights in the UDHR. State FOUR different points that could be used as part of a reasoned case for OPPOSING the following viewpoint:

‘International agreements on human rights are effective in protecting civilians around the world.’

UK CITIZENS, ASYLUM SEEKERS, ECONOMIC MIGRANTS AND ‘HEALTH TOURISTS’

There has been growing debate about the impact on UK citizens of outsiders coming to the UK to:

gain health treatment

get a better life than they have in their country of birth

seek asylum in the UK due to conflict or persecution in their own countries.

In 2018, 30 000 people applied for asylum in the UK. Around 46% of these applications were approved.

Some UK citizens have argued that there should be greater control of migration to the UK.

‘HEALTH TOURISM’ – FACT AND FICTION

Health tourism refers to the idea that people travel deliberately to the UK to seek free treatment for a pre-existing medical condition. Often the problem cannot be treated in their own country.

The Government’s own estimate puts the cost of deliberate misuse of the National Health Service (NHS) by overseas visitors at £300 million. This is only 0.3% of the NHS budget. However, most of this is because UK citizens living overseas return home to use the NHS when they become ill. Some NHS trusts have taken legal action to recover money owed by health tourists rather than accepting that some people may be too poor to pay.

(a) Use FIG. 2 to state ONE piece of evidence to show that health tourists have NOT had much impact on the NHS.

[1]

(b) State ONE action the UK Government could take to reduce deliberate misuse of the NHS.

[1]

(c) State TWO reasons, supported by FIG. 2, why some people in the UK would OPPOSE restrictions on health tourism.

3 Study FIG. 3.1 and answer question 3(a).

FIG. 3.1

The importance of the UK's December 2020 trade deal with the European Union (EU)

Introduction:

Trade with the EU remains important for the British economy even though the UK left the EU in December 2020.

Nearly half of all UK exports – about £225 billion per year – go to EU countries. When the UK was a member of the EU, almost all of these exports were free of tariffs (additional taxes on traded goods).

The UK and EU made a free trade deal in December 2020. Without this agreement, trade would have taken place under World Trade Organisation (WTO) rules. EU tariffs would have increased the cost of UK goods exported to the EU.

Item	WTO tariff	Notes
British wine	32%	This industry has boomed and there are plans for a further 1000 hectares of land to be planted with grape vines. Tariffs would have meant that a £10 bottle of British wine would have cost £13.20 in the EU.
Cars	10%	UK car exports rose to 1.2 million in 2016 or 12% of all UK goods exported. Cars are sold to over 100 countries.

Item	WTO tariff	Notes
Fish	20%	While this would not have increased prices for British consumers, the UK would probably have added a similar tariff to fish from the EU, therefore increasing prices in UK shops.
Agricultural produce	Up to 25%	Tariffs would have increased the cost of strawberry exports by 22% and pea exports by 19%. UK agricultural exports total £27 billion. Over 60% of these exports currently go to European markets.

(a) State TWO arguments based on the information in FIG. 3.1 that could be used to SUPPORT the following viewpoint:

‘The UK/EU December 2020 trade deal was vital for the UK’s economy.’

1 _____

2 _____

Study FIG. 3.2 and answer question 3(b).

FIG. 3.2

Points from the agreement between the EU and UK (December 2020)

TRADE

The UK will leave the European Single Market and Customs Union but there will be free trade on most goods between the EU and UK.

The UK will be able to make trade deals with countries outside the EU.

There will be extra checks at borders, such as safety checks and customs declarations, so businesses that transport goods to and from the EU will have more paperwork to complete and face delays.

SOVEREIGNTY

The UK will be in control of its own borders, money, laws and trade.

The UK will follow EU regulations on such things as: the manufacture of goods, workers' rights, the environment and farming practices.

The EU will have the right to fish in UK waters until 2025.

REPRESENTATION

The UK will no longer be represented in the European Parliament or European Council.

CITIZENS

UK citizens will face restrictions on their freedom to live, work and study in EU member states.

UK professional qualifications such as those for doctors, nurses and architects may not be accepted in the EU.

(b)* Write a reasoned case for OR against the following viewpoint:

‘The UK will gain more than it loses by leaving the EU.’

In your answer you should:

refer to FIG. 3.1 and FIG. 3.2 in your reasoned case

state whether you are for OR against the viewpoint include AT LEAST THREE arguments for OR against the viewpoint. [8]

FIG. 4.1

One permanent Security Council member, the USA, contributes $1.7 billion to the peacekeeping budget. This is more than any other country and the USA has been reviewing its payments.

The USA held a meeting to look at how the UN could do better as a peacekeeper. The United States Ambassador said that ‘poor performance harms the reputation of both the UN and the countries which contribute to peacekeeping’.

The Ambassador listed some of the results such as troops being attacked by armed groups in the Democratic Republic of the Congo or peacekeepers sexually abusing children in the Central African Republic. She went on to say that ‘a greater concern is that sending UN forces to keep the peace puts lives at risk: for the people the UN is meant to protect and for the peacekeepers sent to protect them.’

(a) State TWO countries that are permanent members of the UN Security Council IN ADDITION TO the USA.

1 _____

[2]

(b)* Use information from FIG. 4.1 and FIG. 4.2 and evidence from your own studies to evaluate the following viewpoint:

‘The UN peacekeeping forces have NOT been effective in protecting civilians from conflict.’

You should consider:

reasons why it is sometimes difficult for the UN to send peacekeeping forces reasons why peacekeeping forces sometimes face problems when they are in action

what may happen if the USA decides NOT to maintain its contribution. [12]
