1 Read the passage and answer the questions.

‘I fear the goddess prophesied all too well when she told me I should have my full measure of misery on the sea before I reached my native land. Every word she said is coming true. At Zeus’ command the whole sky is heavy with clouds, the sea is seething, squalls from every quarter hurtle together. There is nothing for me now but sudden death. Three and four times blessed are those countrymen of mine who fell long ago on the broad plains of Troy in loyal service to the sons of Atreus. If only I too could have met my fate and died the day the Trojan hordes let fly at me with their bronze spears over Achilles’ corpse! I should at least have had my burial rites and the Achaeans would have spread my fame abroad. But now it seems I was predestined to die an ignoble death.’ 5 10

As he spoke, a mountainous wave, advancing with awesome speed, crashed down upon him from above and whirled his raft around. The rudder was torn from his hands, and he himself was tossed off the raft; at the same moment the warring winds joined forces in one tremendous gust, which snapped the mast in two and flung the sail and half-deck far out into the sea. For a long time the water kept him under. Weighed down by the clothes which the goddess Calypso had given him, he could not quickly fight his way up against the downrush of that mighty wave. But at last he reached the air and spat out the bitter brine that poured down his face. Exhausted though he was, he did not forget his raft, but struck out after it through the surf, scrambled up, and sitting in the middle of it avoided the finality of death. 15 20 The heavy seas thrust him with the current this way and that. Like the North Wind at harvest-time tossing about the fields a ball of thistles that have stuck together, the gusts drove his craft hither and thither over the sea. Now the South Wind would toss it to the North to play with, and now the East would leave it for the West to chase.

Homer, Odyssey Book 5 lines 299–333

- (a) What happens to Odysseus in Book 5 of the Odyssey before and after this passage? [10]
- (b) How is the power of the storm conveyed in this passage? In your answer you should discuss what Odysseus says, what happens and the way it is written. [20]
- (c) How does Homer use fate in the Odyssey? In your answer, you should include a range of events which have been predicted to take place and consider what they contribute to the poem. [25]

Do not answer this question if you have already answered Question 1.

Marks are awarded in parts (b) and (c) of Questions 1 and 2 for quality of written communication in your answer.

2 Read the passage and answer the questions.

Wailing bitterly, with the tears streaming down their cheeks, the women all came in together. First they removed the bodies of the dead, which they laid under the portico of the walled courtyard, propping them one against the other. Odysseus himself took charge and urged them on: unwillingly they carried the bodies out.

Next they washed down the tables and the beautiful chairs with sponges and water, after which Telemachus and the two herdsmen scraped the floor of the great hall with spades, while the maids removed the scrapings and got rid of them outside. Finally, when the whole hall had been set in order, they took the women out of the building, and herded them between the round-house and the great courtyard wall in a narrow space from which there was no escape. Then the thoughtful Telemachus spoke. 5 10

‘I swear I will not give a decent death to women who have heaped insults on my head and on my mother’s, and slept with the Suitors.’

With that he took a cable which had seen service on a blue-bowed ship, made one end fast to a high column in the portico, and threw the other over the round-house, high up, so that their feet would not touch the ground. As when long-winged thrushes or doves get entangled in a snare, which has been set in a thicket – they are on their way to roost, but find a grim reception – so the women’s heads were held fast in a row, with nooses round their necks, to bring them to the most pitiable end. For a little while their feet twitched but not for very long. 15 20

Homer, Odyssey Book 22 447–473

- (a) What have the servant women already said and done in Odysseus’ palace before this passage? [10]
- (b) How does Homer make this passage an effective piece of story-telling? In your answer, you should discuss what happens and the way these events are narrated. [20]
- (c) ‘Revenge is always taken too far in the Odyssey.’ How far do you agree? In your answer, you should include examples of revenge taking place and the extent to which they were justified. [25]

SECTION B – Essays

Answer one question.

Start your answer on a new page.

Marks are awarded for the quality of written communication in your answer.

3 To what extent do you think that Odysseus is concerned only about himself?

In your answer you should:

- consider what Odysseus says and does
- discuss whether he is more interested in himself than in other people
- support your answer with evidence from the Odyssey.

[45]

4 ‘Perfect Penelope.’ How far does Penelope deserve this description?

In your answer you should:

- consider what Penelope says and does and what people say about her
- discuss whether she behaves in a faultless way or not
- support your answer with evidence from the Odyssey.

[45]

5 ‘Vividly realistic.’ How far do you agree with this description of the life and society portrayed in the Odyssey?

In your answer you should:

- consider what you have learnt about Homeric life and society from the Odyssey
- discuss how far Homer has brought the society to life in a vivid and realistic manner
- support your answer with evidence from the Odyssey.
