Our sickness increased with more than 220 of us with fevers and other illnesses. Our pitiful, rotten provisions had almost run out and we were upon the very point of leaving and losing this colony. Orders were actually given to gather together what food and water we could find and leave the colony. But in our greatest darkness, light appeared, for on 4th February a ship from Jamaica got a leak and was forced into the bay, from which we bought some provisions.

An extract from a letter from Reverend Alexander Shields, 1700. Shields arrived in Darien in November 1699. He was Senior Minister at Darien and was responsible for trying to convert the local people to Christianity.

I still hope to return to Darien, but shall do my best in the first place to get the necessary reinforcements and supplies that we need from Europe; especially because we meet still with discouragement from England. I am still hopeful that there may yet be a good understanding between the nations in this matter, but the present mood of some in England is making this harder work than I could wish for.

An extract from a letter from William Paterson in February 1700. Paterson was the leader of the original Darien project but had returned to Scotland by this date.

SECTION B

Urban Environments: Patterns of Migration

Answer all the questions.

You are advised to spend about 30 minutes on this section.

3 Explain why migrants settled in Spitalfields by 1900. [10]

4 Study Sources D and E.

Which of these sources is more useful to a historian studying Spitalfields after 1945? [10]

Source D

In 1976 I settled in Spitalfields and within a few years I became very engaged with community work as the Bangladeshi community was facing threats to their homes from city developers. I helped to set up the Spitalfields Housing Co-operative and by the late 1980s we had at least five Bangladeshi community-based housing co-operatives in the area. We were able to build and name housing estates with Bengali names such as Fakhruddin Estate and Zafar Khan House.
